

From: Management WAGNER GROUP
To: All employees

7 January 2020

Dear Colleagues,

Fair and ethical practices are essential for good business. The following principles are intended to ensure that our company is managed in an ethical, socially responsible and sustainable manner in all its areas.

Principles

WAGNER requires all employees on every level to comply with the highest standards of business and personal ethics in the exercise of their duties and responsibilities. In this way, we aim to protect and support our good reputation.

It is the responsibility of every single group company and all employees to live by these principles and to make them visible in day-to-day business conduct.

The following principles form the general framework of our business conduct:

- We respect the basic rights of all people worldwide. In particular, we do not tolerate any discrimination based on skin colour or ethnic background, gender, religion or world view, political affiliation, disability, age or sexual identity.
- We respect the law and the ethical and moral standards on which it is based. We therefore reject all forms of corporate crime.
- We work to supply our customers with excellent products and services. We run our company with decency and treat our customers and suppliers fairly. We do not tolerate any form of corruption or bribery.
- We support free and fair competition: we therefore do not make any formal or informal agreements with our competitors that aim at or bring about undue impediment to competition. We do not grant public officials or business partners any inappropriate advantages, nor do we accept any either. We want to impress the market, above all through innovation and the quality of our products.
- We treat our employees justly and with respect. We mutually challenge ourselves to achieve high levels of business performance and we reward achievement. We offer a safe working environment. We recognise employee rights and work constructively with employee representatives.
- We acknowledge our responsibility for protecting health and the environment. We deal conscientiously with raw materials.
- We make a positive contribution in the communities we work in.
- We keep proper accounts and report financial information punctually and honestly. Business information, copyright information (e.g. technical data) and customer data are protected and handled confidentially.

- We act in the company's best interests. We internally disclose all matters that could represent a conflict of interest and resolve these issues.
- We never accept any gifts that exceed a symbolic value. The acceptance of occasional gifts of low value must be agreed with the respective line manager. Invitations must not exceed the customary and appropriate limits.
- We protect the company's assets and ensure that they are used only within the company and for the company.

We listen

The company operates an "open door" policy and encourages all employees to share their questions, concerns and complaints regarding the principles of business conduct. In principle, the employees should contact the management of the company locally. In situations where this is inappropriate, or if the response is unsatisfactory, the employees are requested to contact a member of the management, the head of HR of the WAGNER GROUP, the head of Internal Audit or the Works Council. Such contact may also take place anonymously. All concerns raised will be dealt with in absolute confidence and the doubts expressed will not result in adverse treatment.

With best wishes,

Dr. Bruno Niemeyer
CEO WAGNER GROUP

Guido Bergman
